The Story Behind Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

Are FAQs really frequently asked questions?

In fact, they are. Our FAQs sheets are not a marketing gimmick. They faithfully represent the essence of the questions that we are asked again and again. While FAQs can't tell you everything you want to know about something, there are categories of questions that a wide spectrum of people ask again and again. We have considered that when we designed our FAQs packets.

I see that you have more than one FAQs handout. Which one should I read first?

We hope that you are reading this first as it is a kind of roadmap for the rest of the packet. But if you read this after you have read some of the others – that's OK too because this will show you where you have been. Most people start with the FAQs that represent the area of questions that interests them most:

- Church leader FAQs
- Missions leader FAQs
- Prospective member FAQs
- Prospective missions team FAQs

We would hope that as your curiosity is piqued that you will read them all. Reading them all, starting with the one that interests you most, will help you understand us more and will help you answer other key "stakeholder" questions if you want to pursue a vocational missions calling globally.

Our website is a good place to find out more specific information.
